APRIL, 1982

There is a lot of news this month, some of it past - present - future.

On March 29th, the first Annual Meeting of The Grange Volunteers was held in the Music Room. Glenn Ryley, Flora Agnew and The Volunteer Committee Chairmen each gave an informal talk in which they stressed how successful the past year has been for The Grange. Annie O'Brian regaled us with an hilarious story about how she learned the name of one of the small buckets in the kitchen. It is now known officially as a "firkin", in case anyone asks. Some plans were announced for the coming year. Joan Watson will be organizing the Exhibitions at The Grange. Jean Gray who had the Herculean task of designing and sewing all The House costumes and smocks, has now set-up shop in The Grange workroom (beside the Art Rental Shop). She can always use help in her department and would welcome any volunteers. She is also planning to do some quilting on a group basis. Please speak to her if you are interested.

Mary Aziz will again be in charge of the Christmas Festival sale, and she asks that we all begin thinking about it now, new ideas are needed as well. Sheila Badgley is planning another Docent Training Session in September, and would be glad to have anyone interested sign-up for the course. Annie O'Brian is looking for willing people to help with Research, and of course anyone who can help on The House either Saturday or Sunday will be greeted with open arms. Last but not least the food and wine were delicious!

DAY CAPTAINS

Jayne Dawson of the Wednesday Afternoon Group has given us more news. Two of their docents are organizing a slide talk and lecture for the May 19 Spring Luncheon/Talks series. Their group had a supper get-together at Barbara Snively's home following The Grange celebration. Lynn Anson-Cartwright, Hilda Kidd and Sheila Badgley are attending the Wednesday night Grange Lecture Series.

Annie O'Brian's group is hard at work. Jean Gray reported to us on March 18 regarding a meeting she attended at Stony Creek. It was a seminar organized by the Ontario Museum Association on costuming. On March 25, Isabel Reckitt gave a talk on her tour of Mount Vernon, Williamsburg and the Henry Francis Dupont Winterthur Museum in Delaware. Jane Dodge began our April training talks by reading a paper written by a graduate student at Winterthur. The subject was Nostalgia - how important is it in the restoration of an historic house? The article entitled "Wistful thinking: The effect of nostalgia on interpretation" is available from the Thursday study group.
